

FOUR-CARD POKER

Four-Card Poker is similar to Three-Card Poker, but with a couple of important differences. In Three-Card, the Play wager must equal the Ante; in Four-Card, players may bet up to three times their Ante when staying in the game. And in Four-Card, you play against the dealer and have the option of an additional bonus bet.

All players first make an Ante bet to compete with the dealer. You can also make an Aces Up bet to play against the paytable.

You will be dealt five cards to make up a Four-Card Poker hand.

The Dealer's Hand

The dealer gets six cards to make his or her Four-Card hand. One of the dealer's cards will be dealt face-up.

Stay or Fold

After seeing your hand, you may fold or stay in the game by making a Play wager. You may bet one to three times your Ante if you choose to stay in the game.

Winning & Losing

The dealer reveals his hand and compares it to each player's hand. If a player beats (or ties) the dealer, his Play and Ante bets win even money. If the dealer beats the player, the Play and Ante bets lose.

Aces Up

The Aces Up side bet wins when the player has a pair of Aces or better.

AUTOMATIC BONUSES

Premium hands – Three of a Kind and higher – receive automatic payouts. These are paid on the Ante wager. Automatic bonuses always win, even if the player loses to the dealer.
